On May 10th, 2006, at about 10:00pm, an armed robbery occurred on the Stanford University campus. The weapon used was a handgun. The victim, a female 21 year old undergrad was walking through the parking lot, near her parked car, adjacent to Toyon Hall when she was approached by two male subjects. They asked the victim for directions. Suspect #1 pointed a black handgun at her and demanded she get into her car and to give them all her cash. The victim complied. Suspect #1 stood at the open car door as the victim sat inside the vehicle. The victim surrendered an undisclosed amount of cash. The suspects then walked away from the parking lot in a north bound direction. The victim was not physically harmed. The suspects remain at large.
